

TAKING THE MESSAGE TO THE PEOPLE: NWSC TEAR DROPS OUTSIDE KISORO MOSQUE

Area Stakeholder Sensitisations

National Water and Sewerage Corporation views Stakeholder Management as a key ingredient to successful delivery of services affiliated to the corporation.

Having acknowledged that managing Stakeholders' expectations provides a practical approach to managing what matters the most to the public and the success of the corporation, NWSC has taken to radio stations and pulpits in churches all over the country sensitizing communities about NWSC, the services provided by the corporation, sanitation and hygiene among other water and sewerage related issues.

The weekend of 27th February saw numerous activities by different NWSC areas and branches. Staff members swapped their desks for church pulpits, offices for mosques and set up mobile sensitisation desks.

Here are pictures from selected visits.
